Pros

Natural Beauty

Marble is among the most beautiful natural stone surfaces you can have in your home. The varied colors and elegant veining can freshen up a previously dull space.

High Resale Value

Marble, as is the case with many other types of natural stone, has a high resale value. Many homeowners desire to have an attractive natural stone such as marble in their house.

Each Piece is Different

Because marble is natural, no two pieces are exactly the same. This can be a positive and negative factor, as your vanity top will be unique, but you may have a difficult time finding something that matches it.

Available in Many Different Colors

While you may think of classic types of white marble, the stone actually comes in a variety of beautiful colors that can bring life to your vanity top.

Cons

Cost

If you are looking for a vanity top that is cheap, marble will not match the criteria. Although it is not the most expensive natural stone option you have, you will still have to pay a decent amount to have a marble vanity top. However, the beauty of this natural stone can make the cost worth it.

Can Be Easily Damaged

One of marble's major downsides is the fact that it can sustain damages relatively easily. In the bathroom, you must specifically be careful with toothpaste or hair dye, as products such as these can cause permanent stains on your marble vanity top. Although acidic spills are typically a more significant problem in the kitchen, be careful with cleaners, as some are acidic and can damage marble.

Maintenance of a Marble Vanity Top

If you want to keep your marble vanity top in good shape, you must make the effort to properly care for it. To make this effort, you must only use cleaners that are suitable for marble. In addition, you must try to avoid spills on the vanity top. You will need to re-seal your marble a few times during the year.

Installation of a Marble Vanity Top

Regardless of how skilled you are with Do-It-Yourself projects, you should leave the installation of your new marble vanity top to a professional. Doing so will give you a high chance that the project is done correctly while you can avoid any potential injuries.

How Does Marble Compare to Other Vanity Top Options?

Marble is not your only option for a stylish bathroom vanity top. Some of your other options will include granite and quartzite, among many others. Here is how marble compares to each.

How Does Marble Compare to Granite?

In terms of appearance, granite also comes in many different colors and styles. The stone's gorgeous styles also appeal to many homeowners. However, one giant difference between marble and granite is maintenance. Granite will require much less maintenance than marble. However, there are still always homeowners who have their hearts set on going with the classic material marble. A granite vanity top will cost within the range of $35 to $75 per square foot.

How Does Marble Compare to Quartzite?

Quartzite is another highly attractive stone that you can choose for a bathroom vanity top. Not to be confused with the engineered stone quartz, quartzite is available in many breathtaking colors that can instantly transform your vanity top. Quartzite is often compared to marble due to the similarities in appearance. However, one significant separating factor is that quartzite is much easier to maintain than marble. To clean a quartzite vanity top, all you will need is soap and water. Despite all these positives, there are many homeowners who simply like the look of marble and opt to go with the more traditional stone. A quartzite vanity top will cost within the range of $60 to $120 per square foot.

There are many benefits that you will receive from installing a marble vanity top. In most cases, you will only be updating your vanity top once, so you want to make sure that you choose the material that is right for you. While you may be able to make a case that marble is pricey and can be damaged easily, as long as you take care of the stone properly, its natural beauty alone can be worth every penny. If you are looking for a great way to update your vanity top and give your bathroom a clean look, choosing marble is a great option.
