

Marble and Granite: What Should I Know?

Table of Contents

Marble and Granite: Which Looks Better?

Calacatta Borghini Marble

Santa Cecilia Granite

Crema Marfil Marble

Juparana Exotica Super Granite

Rainforest Green Marble

Altair Granite

Black Marquina Marble

Red Dragon Granite

Tropical Blue Marble

Porto Rosa Granite

Marble and Granite: Which One is Tougher?

Marble and Granite: What Do I Need to Know About Sealing?

Marble and Granite: How Much Do the Stones Cost?

Marble and Granite: Things to Remember

Marble and granite are two of the most popular countertop choices. Both are beautiful natural stones that have had various uses in construction for centuries. Some of the world's most famous structures and statues were created using either one of the two stones. This guide will answer the most important questions homeowners have about both.

Marble and Granite: Which Looks Better?

The answer to this question is a matter of personal opinion. Both natural stones come in many different colors and patterns. Below are some of the most popular and beautiful types of marble and granite.

Calacatta Borghini Marble

Calacatta Borghini Marble is a stunning natural stone that is quarried in Italy. It is one of the most popular types of marble. The stone has a white base with deep grey veins and some taupe highlights.

Santa Cecilia Granite

Santa Cecilia Granite is an amazing Brazilian stone that features a mix of yellow, gold, black and burgundy. This stone will truly bring life to any area you install it in.

Crema Marfil Marble

If you are looking for a stone that gives off a warm feel, Crema Marfil Marble is one of the best options you will find. It is quarried in Spain. The stone is simply gorgeous and will look great in any home.

Juparana Exotica Super Granite

If you are looking for a stone countertop that will truly turn heads, consider Juparana Exotica Super Granite. The stone has a beige base and has beautiful veins running across the slab. It will work well for kitchen countertops, bathroom countertops or other applications in the house.

Rainforest Green Marble

Rainforest Green Marble is a great choice if you are looking for a natural stone that brings a beautiful pop of color to your home. This elegant Indian marble has a green base and features brown veining throughout, which helps to give the stone an earthy feel.

Altair Granite

Altair Granite is an exotic granite that has a black base with eye-catching veins of orange, gold and red that run throughout the slab. If you are looking to make a bold statement with your new countertop, choosing Altair Granite can certainly help you do just that.

Black Marquina Marble

Black Marquina Marble is a stunning black marble that features impressive white veins throughout. The stone is quarried in Spain.

Red Dragon Granite

If you are looking for an eye-catching stone that will bring color and life to your countertop, consider Red Dragon Granite. This stone has a distinctive red base and has black and grey veins running throughout the slab. It originates from Brazil.

Tropical Blue Marble

Tropical Blue Marble can truly bring a touch of art to your countertop. The stone features subtle tones of blue, green and grey and a series of swirls. It is quarried in Brazil.

Porto Rosa Granite

Looking for a stone that is black but still features a small pop of color? Porto Rosa Granite may be the perfect choice for you, as this beautiful natural stone has a black base with pink veins that run throughout the stone.

Marble and Granite: Which One is Tougher?

Although the beauty of marble and granite can be debated, the toughness of the two stones cannot. Granite is a much tougher stone and will stand up to more wear and tear than marble will be able to. This is not to discourage you from purchasing marble; it simply means that you will have to make a greater effort to take care of marble. Although maintenance is not as difficult, you do still have to take care of granite to keep it in good shape over time.

Marble and Granite: What Do I Need to Know About Sealing?

Both marble and granite require sealing to protect against potential stains and damages. Marble will need more frequent re-sealing. You will need to re-seal your marble once every few months. On the other hand, you will only need to re-seal most types of granite once per year.

Marble and Granite: How Much Do the Stones Cost?

The cost of marble and granite will depend on the specific type of stone you choose, how much of it you need and how difficult the installation will be, just to name a few factors. To get a better idea of price, check out the Marble.com Countertop Estimator.

Marble and Granite: Things to Remember

The following table provides a list of what you will need to remember when considering marble and granite.

What to Remember

Both stones are beautiful
Granite is tougher
Both require sealing
Prices will depend on various factors

If you’ve narrowed down your countertop choices to marble and granite, this guide provides you with helpful information you will need to know about both. Both natural stones come with their advantages and disadvantages, but both are terrific options for your new countertop.