

12 Best Quartz Bathroom Countertops

Table of Contents

What Are Quartz Countertops?

Why is Quartz the Perfect Fit for a Bathroom Countertop?

What Are Your Best Options for Quartz Bathroom Countertops?

Light

Neutral

Dark

How Much Do Quartz Countertops Cost?

When it comes to home design, many homeowners focus on high traffic areas, such as the kitchen. But while choosing stylish and practical kitchen countertops is important, it is also important to not forget about your bathroom. A bathroom remodel can update your room's style and function and leave you with a space you will be satisfied with for years to come.

Selecting countertop materials can seem like a complicated task. There are many surfaces you can choose from, ranging from granite countertops to marble countertops and other options like solid surface and laminate. While every countertop option will have its advantages and disadvantages, there is one particular material that is an excellent choice for any bathroom countertop: Quartz.

What Are Quartz Countertops?

Quartz is an engineered stone that is made from roughly 90 percent ground quartz and about 10 percent polyresin. Although the surfaces are not natural stone like granite or marble, quartz countertops are beloved by homeowners for numerous reasons. The surfaces are available in a variety of colors, are very durable and are low maintenance, among many other positive qualities. Because of the benefits quartz offers, the material is a terrific fit for a bathroom vanity top, backsplash and more.

Why is Quartz the Perfect Fit for a Bathroom Countertop?

As the section above indicates, quartz countertops are a great choice for your bathroom. You will be able to find virtually any color or style you can imagine, whether you want something that is light, dark, neutral or a color that will draw attention. You will be able to find slabs that have veining like marble or slabs that are a solid color. If you are looking for a durable alternative to natural stone, quartz is the way to go.

Since quartz is stain resistant and moisture resistant, you will not have to fear installing it in your bathroom. The surfaces are engineered, which makes them non-porous. You will not have to seal a quartz countertop like you will with natural stone options.

What Are Your Best Options for Quartz Bathroom Countertops?

You will have many great options when it comes to quartz bathroom countertops. Below are 12 of the best types of quartz for bathroom countertops, broken down into the categories of Light, Neutral and Dark.

Light

Vena Pure White Quartz

Vena Pure White quartz appears as its name implies – it is pure white in color. If that is the look you want for your bathroom, there is no better material to choose. When you factor in the material's durability and other benefits, it is truly one of the best countertop materials you can have in your bathroom.

Vena Statuario Bianco Quartz

If you are searching for a type of quartz that resembles marble, Vena Statuario Bianco quartz can be just what you are looking for. The material has a white background and gorgeous gray veins throughout.

5143 White Attica Caesarstone Quartz

This stunning white quartz has dark gray veining. It is a great choice if you are looking for a light quartz that has some character to it.

5031 Statuario Maximus Caesarstone Quartz

5031 Statuario Maximus Caesarstone quartz is a magnificent engineered stone that has a white background accompanied by gray veining. This countertop will look amazing in any bathroom setting.

Light Quartz Options

Vena Pure White quartz
Vena Statuario Bianco quartz
5143 White Attica Caesarstone quartz
5031 Statuario Maximus Caesarstone quartz

Neutral

9601 Oyster Caesarstone Quartz

9601 Oyster Caesarstone quartz is cream colored and has consistent black speckling throughout. It is a gorgeous neutral tone to use in your bathroom.

4230 Shitake Caesarstone Quartz

This wonderful quartz is a taupe color and has white and black speckles throughout. It is a very stylish choice for a new bathroom countertop.

4033 Rugged Concrete Caesarstone Quartz

4033 Rugged Concrete Caesarstone quartz features a darker gray background and lighter veins. This material will offer both aesthetic and practical benefits to your bathroom.

Copacabana Quartz

Copacabana quartz is a terrific gray quartz that will certainly grab attention from anyone who enters the room. Installing this material can put a nice finishing touch on your bathroom remodeling project.

Neutral Quartz Options

9601 Oyster Caesarstone quartz
4230 Shitake Caesarstone quartz
4033 Rugged Concrete Caesarstone quartz
Copacabana quartz

Dark

6338 Woodlands Caesarstone Quartz

If you are looking for a type of quartz that is dark but not quite black in color, 6338 Woodlands Caesarstone quartz can be perfect for you. The engineered stone has a very dark brown base color and gold speckling.

Lunar Night 1525 Quantra Quartz

This dark quartz is a beautiful choice for any bathroom countertop. It is sure to drastically improve both the style and function of your space.

5100 Vanilla Noir Caesarstone Quartz

5100 Vanilla Noir Caesarstone quartz is a black quartz with white speckles. It is truly one of the most beautiful countertops you can choose for your bathroom.

3100 Jet Black Caesarstone Quartz

Just as there is a type of quartz that is pure white in color, there is an amazing material that is pure black in color as well. This amazing quartz will add a consistent black color to your bathroom countertop, which is perfect to match with darker colored elements or contrast lighter colored elements.

Dark Quartz Options

6338 Woodlands Caesarstone quartz
Lunar Night 1525 Quantra quartz
5100 Vanilla Noir Caesarstone quartz
3100 Jet Black Caesarstone quartz

How Much Do Quartz Countertops Cost?

The cost of quartz countertops is dependent on a range of factors. Some of these factors include the color and style you choose, how much of the material you need and how many cutouts and angles you require. For example, you should keep in mind that you will need cutouts for the sinks and faucets.

In general, quartz tends to fall in a middle ground when it comes to cost. On average, the material can be found for between $50 to $120 per square foot.

If you are looking for a countertop material that combines both style and function for your bathroom, quartz is one of the best you will find. As long as you do not expose the surface to excessive heat, such as hot hair styling tools, your countertop will stay in magnificent shape for years to come.