Table of Contents

There are many great reasons to install marble surfaces in your home, whether that is a marble countertop, tabletop, marble floors or other surfaces. This natural stone is one of the most beautiful materials you can have in your home. However, one of the downsides to marble is that the stone can scratch easily. If this happens to your marble, there is no need to panic, as there are simple ways to remove scratches. By following the steps outlined below, you can restore your marble's beauty.

How Can You Remove Scratches from Marble?

While deep scratches will require professional help, removing minor scratches is a DIY job. Surface scratches are often caused by dirt and are easy to remove.

Step 1: Mix Warm Water and Mild Dish Soap

Start by mixing warm water with mild dish soap. This will be applied to the site of the scratch.

Step 2: Rub the Area with a Damp Cloth

Wet a soft cloth in the water and dish soap mixture. Then, wring the cloth out so it is just damp, rather than soaked. Gently rub the area of the scratch with the damp cloth.

Step 3: Rinse the Surface

After this, rinse the surface of your marble with a different damp soft cloth that was dipped in just warm water.

Step 4: Buff the Surface

Use a dry soft cloth to buff the surface. Buffing should be done in a circular motion.

Step 5: Polish

Lastly, you can polish the marble using products like this one.

If this process does not remove the scratch from your marble, you can try carefully using a piece of fine grain sandpaper. If neither method works, you will need to seek professional help, as marble restoration experts will have access to tools that can solve the issue.
